ABOUT THE ISSUE

In our radicalized, cultural drive toward phony political correctness, public displays of Christ's birth are being driven from town squares, schools, and public premises. Well, we make no apology for being Christians. Our cover depicts the entry of Christ into the world as the foundation upon which Western civilization is built. Also in this issue, Craig Parshall takes us on a journey through the great cities of Jesus' day. Plus we'll learn more about the infamous Herod, who ruled Judea when Jesus was born. And with Christmas around the corner, you can even sing along as you read the stories of your favorite Christmas carols. To cap off this edition, Lebanese Christian Brigitte Gabriel tells her incredible, life-changing story. Don't miss a word!

IN THIS ISSUE

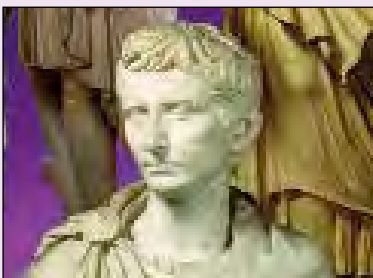

The Treasures of the Season
by Elwood McQuaid10
Tis the season when our forefathers bowed their heads and gave thanks. Oh how things have changed.

Great Cities of Jesus' Day
by Craig L. Parshall14
With Christmas around the corner, we invite you to tour four cities in first-century Israel that testify to the Savior's power. Two of them are still there today.

Herod the Not-So-Great
by Bruce Scott18
Herod murdered infants yet built a magnificent Temple Mount. What type of man was he? A brilliant madman whose life is a remarkable study in contradiction.

Jerusalem vs. Rome: Jewish Life in the Time of Christ
by Herb Hirt22
Although idol worship saturated Rome, the Jewish people had rights that many of them did not want jeopardized. Thus arose a difficult conflict for Judaism.

The Carols of Christmas
by Peter Colón30
Many of us love the strains of the old, familiar songs of Christmas. And you may love them even more after you learn the fascinating stories behind them.
