ABOUT THIS ISSUE

Time was when folks viewed talk of a “new world order” as a pipe dream. Nationalism was the stuff of the real world. But things have changed dramatically in recent years, and the question gaining momentum these days is, “When will the global society be ushered in, and who will be in charge?” In this edition of Israel My Glory, our authors tackle this issue and show you how a “new world order” fits with the end-times picture laid before us in Scripture. From plans for the ancient Tower of Babel and a God-free union of nations, an economic utopia, and a man-made stairway to heaven—until God steps in—to the introduction of the new version of the Shinar dream, it’s all here. Including, best of all, the God-steps-in part. Our cover shows the world financial leaders who are involved in the push for a global currency. (Digital composition and enhancement, Thomas E. Williams)

IN THIS ISSUE

The Cross in the Desert

by Elwood McQuaid10
Thousands of Americans are buried overseas where they died fighting for their country. Now the ACLU wants to remove a cross that signifies the last measure of their devotion.

Racing Toward the New World Order

by Craig L. Parshall14
The future dreamed of by the globalists of the 1980s has arrived. And it spells nothing good for Christians or loyal, devoted Americans.

G-20 and Beyond: The Push for Global Finance

by James A. Showers18
First came the euro, the multinational currency of the European Union. Now something more comprehensive is on the drawing board, and its implementation may be closer than you think.

The Kingdom of the Beast

by Charles E. McCracken22
Who doesn’t want global peace and harmony? Who doesn’t wish to live in a utopia? The day is coming when some people will think they’re getting what they wished for—but they will be dreadfully wrong.

The Emergent Kingdom

by Gary E. Gilley26
The emergent church is growing. Unfortunately, it embraces three distinct understandings of God’s Kingdom that draw the movement toward acceptance of a one-world system.
