IN THIS ISSUE

Security on the Island of Grace
by Elwood McQuaid8
When the qualities that made America great disappear, America may disappear as well. And one quality in particular overrides the rest. A secure America depends on it.

His Word Is Truth
by Richard D. Emmons12
Have you ever had trouble explaining inspiration, inerrancy, and infallibility to someone who doesn't believe in them? Here's a little help.

Literal or Nonliteral? That Is the Question
by Douglas Bookman16
Six days or a thousand years? How long did it take God to create the world? What you believe about Genesis 1 is more critical than you may realize.

Is He or Isn't He?
by Steve Herzig18
Is Jesus the only way to God? CNN's Larry King seems to want to know—along with millions of other people, some of whom have rather interesting points of view.

The Ghost of America Yet to Come
by Craig L. Parshall24
The Netherlands is a small country with a big problem. And by the looks of things, America is heading in the same direction.

ABOUT THIS ISSUE

If you're looking for a magazine that tells it like it is, we suggest you put this issue to the test. Craig Parshall's "The Ghost of America Yet to Come" is the indispensable lead into the theme of God's absolutes. Never before has there been a greater need for solid, biblical footing and objective analysis. Even our cover, which reveals amazing Israeli technology, testifies to the truth of God's Word. Top left: vacuum tubes used to collect solar energy that is not only converted into electricity but also into heating and cooling systems (Brian Hendler/Liaison). Top right: trays of solution to grow stem-cell colonies (David Silverman/Getty Images). Bottom: an unusual way to grow food in the desert (David Doubilet/National Geographic/Getty Images). We recommend you read on!
