Answering the Higher Critics
 by Michael D. Stallard.....26
 Some say more than one man wrote the book of Isaiah because no one can foresee the future. Really? Here's evidence to the contrary.

In a flash of boyish inspiration, a young Bedouin shepherd picked up a pebble and threw it into a cave jutting out of the chalky formation near the Dead Sea. Hearing the shattering of a clay pot, he dropped into the cave for a look. That pebble, from the hand of a simple shepherd, would answer one of the enduring questions of our time. The scroll of Isaiah, 66 chapters, all pristinely preserved and dated at least 1,000 years before the oldest versions available up to that time (1947), was part of the find. In this dynamic issue you will discover why the Lord preserved these invaluable biblical treasures. Charts, articles, and snippets of Isaiah's timeless message will inspire, instruct, and direct your life. Look, read, learn, and absorb His Word for your life today.

Gracing our cover this issue is a dramatic panorama of the Sea of Galilee taken by Israeli photographer (Israel Talby/ Israelimages).
